The Chimes

Published by the Senior Class of Berea College—1949.

For one year we have lived together - - - - A year of black coffee, term papers, cramming for exams, and groans of despair coupled with bull sessions, jam sociols, hikes, and wholesome fun - - - - We have grown academically; we have acquired a lust for Truth; and we have kept our healthful vigor - - - - But, above all, WE HAVE LIVED TOGETHER as an integral part of the Berea Way of Life.

SUCCESS

Slowly he read with lips moving
Like one mumbling over thoughts
Of days when the soft, cool dirt
In fields plowed by the farmer
Came up tickling soft Against his bare feet, while over it
He ran in play under the evening sun
To call the lowing cows, and send the dog
If needs be to trail their switching tails.
Thus pensive-like, alone
As a hermit in the woods
Where the night air cools the dark,
From words to space
And then in tones of deep satisfaction,
Smiles carressed his brow
And over his face peace came
Like the dawn as from his lips
Rolled words that sent a startling pain
Riding on the still air—yet filling
The solid atmosphere with fire;
As in olden days when the one
Who set the great example
Lived among men, and taught in parables
How they should live. Thus he spoke
And felt secure as one holding the world
In his hands, if it were possible,
And closing the book with firm fingers
As up he rose to march in steadfast gait
To assure himself. He knew the thing
Which had long troubled him was now like Dew giving drink to a thirsty flower.

CAIN IN THE FOREHEAD

Tomorrow I will try again. Sweet hell, will I ever know to put the brush down. I had touched the lips a tender one too many and then all the magic was gone out of the forehead. I loved the lips and tried to make them happy turning down.

Over my bed, now the lights are out, the leaf shadows play like mad bats on a piece of light my window lets in. His spoiled face dries between the covers of a book where I did not cross it with the mark that says I failed. My brush sleeps and I sleep too.

* * * *

All night long the shadow leaves play above my bed.

* * * *

Somewhere he sleeps—not on paper with happy lips—on white sheets he lies.

* * * *

Then he slept in the river . . . three days before they found him. They wouldn't let me see him; my father and my mother pushed me back as if I were a child, but I wasn't a child I was twenty and he was dead—drowned in the black river and I loved him . . . he wasn't anything to them. But I did see . . . they left him alone in the attic and I went up to the cold attic . . . he was lying in a coffin . . . there was a mask on his face, I thought because it had been mutilated lying in the river . . . it was like his face only larger and it didn't have the sign. Then I went to the window I thought I was going to be sick . . . it was a long way down; then the ground came up at me and my head went round but I wasn't sick and I ran down the stairs crying. His friend was crying too. I had never seen a man cry like that before . . . sobbing like that. He was lying on the bed . . . I put my face down to his and tasted the salt tears and kissed his lips . . . then . . . both our mouths filled up with blood.

I didn't see red, but I knew because sometimes my nose bleeds, and it tastes like that. I woke up then and I knew it wasn't his friend—it was he I had kissed, and it was too good to have dreamed to think about the blood.

* * * *

Tomorrow I walk and walk in the rain. It has grown quite dark, but I keep on walking. My hair sticks to my head all round, my feet are very wet, and I can hear my shoes squish when I walk. My clothes are wet too because my raincoat does not turn water. I am not thinking of anything. I feel as if I were listening to music, but all I hear is the rain. I am walking in the road where hedges grow close up all along, and when you have to step aside you have to push into the wet bushes. But nothing has passed. Then a light is before me in the road a few feet away, and I walk very slowly to the side. The car slows and misses me. My coat has touched the side of the car . . . I walk on. Then I begin to think how he almost hit me . . . and it doesn't seem to matter one way or the other. Then I begin to think about the dream. I wonder why I didn't, the pain was so great when they told me he was dead. I never knew pain like that. I go to my room and get the wet things off. I drink hot coffee and wrap my feet in something warm. Then I lie on my bed. Everything seems very distant and very clean. When I lifted the mask there wasn't anything under it.

I get up and go to the mirror and look at my forehead. It is white and clear and purged by the rain, I think. My eyes look back at me like two strangers. My nose feels funny and I sneeze. Then I go back to bed and soon I sleep in spite of the hot black coffee.

MUSIC

Music.
Light, gay, like a fairy Tugging at my heart
Daring me be sad.

Music.
Leading me through doors
That cease to exist

To enchantment—
White clouds
Blue skies
Rainbows, all color
And dreams come true—

And happiness.

Music.
Sombre, dark, like a tear
That drops into a cesspool
Black.

Music.
In company with shadowed thought
Through dense forest
And unstarred skies.

Music.

APPRECIATION

Artist of music—of living, whose skillful hands draw forth
the harmonies of life existing latent within the being,
I have continued to wear the binding vestment of flesh
in this atonal human chorus, Because you created, sustained, and blended purpose, love, and striving into a song my soul can sing.

—Marjorie Keener

THE UNTOUCHABLE

It was cold that day. The world had a nasty white sneer on its snow-clad face. The bus was packed: young college students, never away from home before, returning for the holidays; laborers, dirt grimed from the factories' filth, thinking of home and a warm plate of beans; old ladies homeward bound after the last minute shopping; hardened servicemen, coming home from duty in time for Christmas; giggly high school kids, dressed in jeans, discussing the teams' possibilities in the basketball tournament; businessmen home from the office, cursing the ration board, the car shortage. Strange what a conglomeration of faces. . . . .

It was cold that day. That was the reason for the fur coat. Sneery, nasty snow, domineering Christmas trees, bearded Santa Clauses, Salvation Army bells and fur coats go together, don't they?

One of the elderly ladies wore a fur coat. But that was different—she wore it with assurance, sensing that the blue of her scarf and her gloves matched, that they were "right" this season. The Untouchable merely wore a fur coat.

It was the Christmas season. That was the reason for the golden sandals. Bright lights, tinsel, angel hair, silver icicles, gold—that's Christmas, isn't it?

One of the college girls wore gold, and that was right. Gold from Harper's Bazzar, gold that accented her blonde hair with the Helena Rubinstein rinse. The Untouchable merely wore golden sandals that punctuated her "tampered with" blonde hair.

It was windy that day. That was the reason for the slacks. Cold winter wind of the Kanawha River, nasty, sneery snow, blocks to walk after the bus stop—why not slacks?

The high school girls wore jeans. But they wore Pea coats and saddles too. The Untouchable didn't—she merely wore slacks.

Mangy fur coat, tightened face, "tampered with" blonde hair, tight sweater, red ankle socks, golden sandals, kelly green slacks—oh, you find that in any town. Just walk down the streets which "nice" people avoid. It may be Chicago's Loop or Charleston's red light district, but when you look, it's there. Look, yes, look, but don't forget to see. You wouldn't judge a book by its cover, would you?

The Untouchable was the last to enter; the driver had placed "monkey seats" on the aisle to take care of the holiday rush. As the Untouchable took her place I saw heads turn—turn as if blown by that strong wind from the Kanawha River. High school girls displayed a sinful amount of curiosity. The laboring man, tired from the day's work of drudgery spat and rubbed his hands together. The college girls sniffed n disgust at the scent of "Blue Waltz." The businessman thought contrastingly of his own wife, her conventional black suit, the angularity of her body. The serviceman, too long gone from home town girls with their short skirts, sloppy sweaters, and a single goodnight kiss, turned with a lust in his eyes. And the elderly lady with the fur coat, the blue scarf and gloves removed her hand from the arm rest as the Untouchable sat down.

"Mind if I smoke?" the Untouchable inquired.

"It wouldn't make much difference if I did, seeing the kind you are," snapped the blue lady.

"If it bothers you I won't. I ain't never seen nothin' that I can't do without, least ways for a spell. I just ain't had a fag since . . ."

"Never mind. Go ahead. Your type never has any manners, always thinking of themselves and their sinful ways. Don't you ever get ashamed and think of burning in Hell? Aren't you afraid of God?"

The Untouchable's vermillioned lips trembled. "No," she replied, "My God don't never frighten. He's merciful; He loves and He forgives; He understands." And then she added, more or less to herself, "God didn't make me this way; that was the cold, the nasty white snow, the conglomeration of people . . . He forgives."

The day was cold and the buzzer made a hissing sound as the businessman pulled the cord at Capitol and Woodlawn. The blue lady moved to the seat beside the golden college girl who was smoking in Emily Post fashion—"Hold the butt with right hand and inhale from the left corner of the mouth." There were a few words—university, formal, dress, engagement.

The Untouchable pulled out a cigarette, lit it. A tear tumbled from her mascaraed eyes. Once those eyes had "crows feet" fram laughing, but now there were only creases—creases from squinting in dark, musty places.

It was cold that day. There was a nasty, sneery snow. There was a conglomeration of faces. And somewhere, someone was singing, "Peace on Earth, good will toward men."

Elenita R. Ellison

PESSIMIST

Can man reach farther than his arm is long?
Or sing louder than his voice is strong?
Or warm his hands when the fire is gone?
Can man push back a down-hill stream?
Or weave a silk shawl from a fishhook dream?
Or sift the good from the days now gone?

OPTIMIST

I must return to the market-place and to the Old Man
As sells ripe fruit covering fat worms.
He sells his gut-filled fruit for time
And promises when floods appear Indifference.
I will go back to the market-place
And throw sharp words in the Old Man's face
And lay one man-made worm-eaten case
Before the higher court of Nature.

—William Blair

UNCERTAINTY

In great tranquility
The night with all its starry spaces Moves away
Like a marionette on wires
Leaving empty space
Then through flashes of light
We see that there is something unknown
Which is fearful and superlatively painful Showing itself to be
That unconceivable thing called life.
And there is revealed in snatches
No human certainty
No estate beyond chance
And the mind is strange to itself—
A farce of complete destruction.
Some say humanity is divine
But humanity draws behind its shadow
And we turn away.

There was a crooked man slowly
with a foot that drags and hinders—
a twisted foot
that drags the humor down from mouth and eyes—
at night

he walks where no man sees and lingers
with an emptiness and store-window eyes . . .

and he walked a crooked mile where he found music
wavered and water-widened
in the path and the hill
and
a raindrop, a crystolline worm, inching itself along a black twig—
and white streaks that crossed and crossed themselves before the holy sky . . .

and he found a crooked sixpence
the coin was in his hand and his hand was not his hand—
'. . . let the deed be upon us and on our children . . . '
and he carried the coin
but he did not spend it (what man will trade bread for water?)

he found a crooked cat . . .
black shiny animal glinting as a devil's eye radiant and loneliness possessed
he followed the sound of the twisted foot
followed the path
that flooded the hill—
and stalking through the woods one day he caught a crooked mouse cats do not catch rats

for pleasure pleasure does not care to eat—but this rat had a fine sense of humor could recite amazing bits of poetry—and so for the sake of pleasure

they all lived together and there was dissonance and they knew there was dissonance
but the crooked ones

in the little crooked house found dissonance was consonance . . .

—Marie Day Butler

BEREA'S FEAVER

Five minutes after the bell, Feaver rushes in Soon after, confusion crosses craniums again.

He raises windows and questions
And proceeds the board to erase,
Turns toward the group revealing
Remains of breakfast on his face.

Students grit unwashed teeth
And are driven totally sane
By the great theories flowing
From Feaver's tabula rasa brain.

Amid class roars and snores
And sneaking out the doors,
A student boldly raises a hand;
And quotes, with eyes bright,
"Sir, I may not be quite right,
But a point I don't understand."
Feaver 'hems' and he 'haws'
Beats his head against walls
Cries, "Eureka, I'll argue you down."
Draws diagrams, squares, and rings
All sorts of queer chalked things,
While speeches with wit abound.

To prevent classroom woe
Feaver proceeds with a show
Of lecturing long and with full force
After finding it stable
He climbs on the table
And recites some more of the course.

Until the Draper bell resounds
Feaver pounds and expounds
For, seriously, he seems to know much;
As amateur philosophers amble out
"Come back" is his last shout
Students do—for rare is tale of such.

TIME OUT

Since the '49 Chimes is a product of many heads and many hands, it seems well now to stop for a few minutes to see who should be given credit. Because it is almost impossible to class the type of work that each of us did, I will at this time list only those names which do not appear on the first page:

I think special attention should be made of the layout work which was done by Frank Seto; the splendid photography done by Curtis Haverly; the cartoons by John Rummel, Frank Seto and Phil Harris; the high school section edited by Joan Scrivner; the running memory crutches by Orville Pearson, Helen Webb, Bob Robinson, and Sunny Chadwell; the montage work done by Woodrow Phillpott.

At this time we should note the wonderful cooperation which was shown by all our subscribers. Without your help, The Chimes would be a complete failure. We were also very fortunate this year to have Dean Thompson and the Cabinet Committee working with us. We are indeed appreciative of their excellent support and advice.

It is impossible for me personally to thank everyone who has shown interest in the '49 Chimes, but I do wish to use this space to thank Mr. Hulburt and Mr. Carrington. Without their encouragement I would have been at a complete loss.

As an ending note, I wish to express my sincere appreciation to "Linky" Blanton at the Press who spent nights of work and worry in order that the Chimes would get out on time.

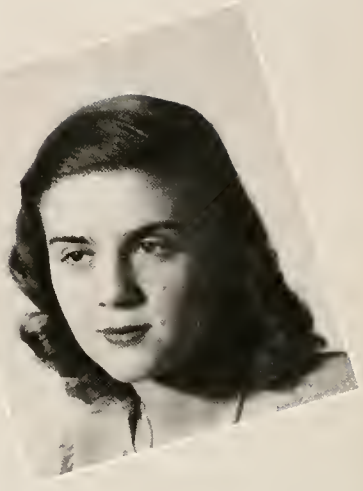
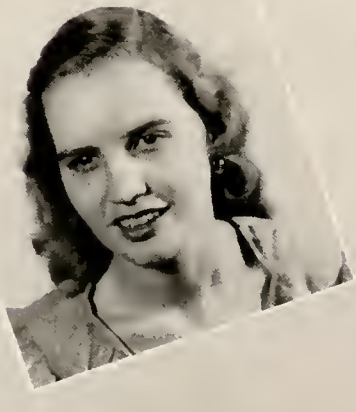
May Court





Personality Sketches

Each year Berea College turns out for a May Day celebration which is sponsored by the Women's Athletic Department. The climax of this delightful event is the crowning of the May Queen by one of her eight attendants.

Nine members of the court are selected by the senior women, while the Queen is chosen from these nine by a majority vote of all women students. The Queen's identity remains a secret until the Coronation Ceremony.

MARY FRANCES YOUNT

"Marfy" will became Mrs. William L. Huntsman, Jr. af Draper Raw after August 6, 1949. Her ambitian - - - - "Isn't it enough ta marry an athlete?" asked Marfy. "Guess I'll have ta ga in training."

RONDA ALLEN

Randa is a brunette beauty. She is 22 years old, and 5 ft. 3 in. in height. Her college labar is in the Women's Phy. Ed. Dept., and she plans ta cantinue in the field af recreatian after her graduatian next June.

JEAN WATSON

"I want ta wark far a psychiatrist, and ta marry, and ta have a family," was the way that Jean summed her future plans. This Sauth Caralina gal is 5 ft. 4 in. tall, has dark brawn hair and hazel eyes, and is all af 20 years old.

WANDA HAMMONS

Wanda's brawn hair, brawn eyes, and 108 pounds added up ta make this math majar a natural Caurt choice. Wanda is 20 years old, comes from Detrait, Michigan, and plans ta became a teacher after daing graduate wark in educatian.

EVELYN PENNINGTON BURKLE

Petite and sweet Evelyn is anly 5 ft. tall. She became Bill Burkle's bride in January, 1949. Evelyn has chalked up many hanars far herself, heading varaus campus argonizatians. She plans ta da graduate work in physical educatian.

Yea, Blue !! Yea, White!! - - - - Thus another Berea sports season passed into the record books - - - - a year in which the name "Mountaineers" was on everyone's lips - - - - a year that found the Blue and White fighting to maintain a winning record - - - - entering a new conference - - - - Cross Country - - - - Basketball - - - - Baseball - - - - Track - - - - Swimming - - - - Tennis - - - - Another sports year—a good year.

We cheered, we fought, and at times, when the excitement became intense and the Mountaineers were behind, we just sat on the hard bleachers and did nothing but hope for a small miracle - - - - a winning basket or a home run - - - - small things, but big in those crucial moments. We won and we lost, and all the time we thought that sports were good at Berea - - - - the game was played for fun and enjoyment, and we had both - - - -

The sports year - - - Basketball was the sport that had students and faculty filling Seabury every Saturday night, or cramming busses and cars for a trip to a neighboring school - - - - Basketball was crowned "king" for a few weeks. What happened? - - - - The Mountaineers played twenty games - - - - winning eleven and losing nine. They scored a total of 1113 points and their opponents netted 1063.

The basketball story - - - - when Coach C. H. Wyatt called for basketball men, a total of sixty candidates reported for the first practice. Six lettermen—Huntsman, Hale, Miller, Back, Craft, Cornette, and Fish—returned from last year's team; Harris, Capps, Feltner, LeMaster, and Brown were selected from the group of candidates to complete the '48-'49 edition of the Mountaineers.

The headline story - - - - the season started with the traditional Alumni-Varsity game, the Mountaineers winning 55-31 - - - - Hale, '47-'48 Berea star, looked good - - - - Transylvania fell next, the first conference win - - - - Huntsman is high point man - - - - then Morehead and Union nipped our boys - - - - the Eagles rally as Huntsman stars again - - - - Bulldogs won in the final seconds - - - - Fort Knox's Soldiers are defeated, as was Villa Madonna - - - - hitting the road during the Christmas vacation - - - - split two games with Milligan - - - - Hale and Back outstanding - - - - Harris suffers injuries and cannot make trip - - - - Western Romps over outclassed Bereans - - - - Georgetown and Kentucky Wesleyan surprise fans by downing the Mountaineers in a three-game string of defeats - - - - Berea Hits Stride - - - - Transylvania, Georgetown, and Centre fall as the Mountaineers start hitting the net - - - - Hale, Huntsman and Craft performing beautifully - - - - whole team goes wild against Centre - - - - Kentucky Wesleyan Halts Berea - - - - Craft leads Berea - - - - Harris back in uniform - - - - Union and Centre Downed Again - - - - Morehead Nips Berea - - - - season ends - - - - Tournament Time!!

Tournament time! Berea came to the close of the season with a better win-loss record than any team in the Kentucky Inter-collegiate Athletic Conference (K.I.A.C.). The league, reduced this year to the original six-team loop, planned the Tourney for Georgetown College's gym - - - Kentucky Wesleyan was favored to win - - - - but Berea was the team to watch - - - - and the fans who watched were pleased - - - -

The opening round of the tourney found Wesleyan defeating Transylvania and Georgetown winning over Centre College. In the second round, The Georgetown team whipped Union, and the Mountaineers upset

Schedule:

We		They
55	Alumni	31

the favored Kentucky Wesleyan team. But in the finals, the Georgetown team downed the Mountaineers, 54-44. History repeated itself as the Mountaineers were pushed into the runner-up position again.

Berea played the same role in the same drama - - - - defeating Wesleyan in the semi-finals, and losing to Georgetown in the finals - - - - the same thing happened in the 1947-48 season. The old Georgetown jinx worked overtime again - - - - Swimming - - - - when basketball ended, interest in sports turned to the swimming team. Intercollegiate swimming was resumed for the first time since 1947, and a squad, lacking experience and strength in many spots, met seven opponents—Universities of Tennessee and Louisville, Eastern State and Maryville College. Tennessee, Eastern and Louisville each won two meets from the Mountaineers. Pigg - - - - Shrader - - - - Capps - - - - Chapman - - - - Beck - - - - Jones - - - - Thompson - - - - Brown - - - - Thornton—names that made swimming history in 1949 - - - - Intercollegiate swimming, however, was not the only swimming event for college students. The campus was treated to the annual aquacade - - - - highlighted by diving and complicated underwater and surface maneuvers, the show was one of success, finesse, and beauty - - - - Coach Norman Fenn directed swimming operations - - - -

Baseball - - - - Berea fielded a baseball team for the second time in history - - - - the last baseball game was played in 1914, but was for intramural purposes only - - - - winning five and losing five in 1948, the baseball team played a fourteen game schedule this year - - - - Coach C. H. Wyatt put away his basketball handbook and started using a baseball guide - - - - fans learned new terms, new things to yell at officials, and spent Saturday afternoons "out at the ballgame" as baseball was revived on the campus for the second year - - - - Durham, G. Williams, Robbins, Parsley, Kelly, Carter, Godsey, H. Williams, Huntsman, Weddington, Craft, and Armstrong were among the Bereans to sharpen spikes, polish bats, and play baseball - - - -

Tennis - - - - Wilson, Rickard, Gammon, Yokogawa, LeMaster, Graid, and Gabbard were the cogs in the Berea tennis team - - - - Coach O. H. Gunkler took over coaching duties - - - - a twelve match schedule - - - - Cincinnati - - - - Transylvania - - - - Louisville - - - Centre - - - - rackets - - - - nets - - - -

Track - - - - Cross Country in the fall, track and field in the spring - - - - Coach Norman Fenn heading the Berea cindermen - - - - distance runs - - - - sprints - - - - field events - - - - track in the afternoon with tennis and baseball - - - - a busy Saturday afternoon on the athletic field - - - - seven meets with K. Events and more events, which add up to a busy and an active time for the Athletic Department, and Berea athletes - - - -

Mr. Gunkler in white trousers, Mr. Fenn in swimming trunks, Mr. Wyatt in a baseball cap - - - - familiar sights - - - - gym classes in various stages of dress and undress - - - - body mechanics - - - - Monday night swimming - - - - tickets at the college store - - - - everything fits into a picture of activity and work - - - - Berea athletics - - - - an institution for learning, for play, and for fun.

Can you imagine a home without Photographs of those we love and those who love us? Why it just could not be! There is the picture of Mother taken on her wedding day and the funny one of Dad taken in 1929, the year they gave him an interest in the business, and that good one taken last Christmas—and would you believe it that freckled faced boy in the other photograph is now our six-foot Bob, and the little girl beside him is Mary, who is married and has children of her own, and last of all tucked away in a trunk with a pair of tiny tear stained booties, is a picture of Ethel the baby, whom the Angels lent us but just for a happy holiday. For Mother she lives eternally in that tear-stained photograph.

Photography has come to fill a place in all our lives and I hope Daguerre who discovered it can look down from heaven and see what came of running around trying to catch sunlight in a little black box.
